In a career stretching over a decade, Stoll has gained a great deal of experience in the financial services industry. Previously he worked at Fifth Third Bank. He has also worked in the business services departments of other area financial institutions – serving in various capacities but all with increased levels of responsibility.

About his new career with Consumers Stoll says, "I enjoy being a part of Consumers Credit Union because we are a community-oriented, member-focused organization that provides responsive, high level service to our members."

Stoll earned a BA in Business Administration from Western Michigan University where he majored in Finance and minored in General Business. He has also undergone formal bank

Stoll is happily married to his wife Sarah and is a proud father of two young boys. He is a member of the Community Investment Team for the United Way and enjoys being involved in the community.
